

This half term I have enjoyed popping into all the classes to see how teaching and learning is going, and it's been great to see how enthusiastic and engaged the children are. Across the whole school children are being challenged to extend their learning and develop positive attitudes.

However I have been disappointed to see how learning is interrupted by the number of children arriving late for school. For example last week whilst observing a super lesson in year three the class were interrupted six times during their teachers input by children arriving late - this is not fair on those children who then miss out on vital information, but also on the children whose learning is interrupted. It is also not fair on the teacher who has spent a great deal of time and effort planning and preparing the lesson.

Please remember that school starts at 8.55am.

Dress up if you wish - but please remember that we do not wish to scare our younger children with inappropriate outfits.

This November it is 100 years since the end of the First World War. At Braddan School we will be reflecting on this during the week of 5th November, with the children working together in mixed age groups taking part in a variety of activities that will commemorate those who died, teach about the impact of conflict, and think about how we can try to create a more peaceful world. As part of our commemorations we will be visiting Braddan War Memorial and creating our own memorial of painted 'Poppy Stones.'

It would be really helpful if your child could bring in a flat hand sized beach pebble on Monday 5th November.

Mrs Trimble will be leaving us shortly, with her last day in school being 9th November. If you would like to contribute to her leaving collection please send any donation to Mrs Brookman in the office.

Reading Challenge

As reading with your child is one of the most important things you can do as a parent, we like to celebrate those children who read with an adult at home at least four times a week.

Reading at home has a real impact on how well children progress in school - from reception right through to year six. Children can read school books, books from the library, their own books, comics or magazines, e-books - anything!

Date for the Diary
We will be holding a Christmas Fair on the afternoon of 7th December. If you have any items for our bric-a-brac stall please save them and send them in to us. More details to follow.
